A POET'S EPITAPH.

By WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

ORDSWORTH aimed at simplicity, and whatever faults he has are due to his desire to be extremely plain. He tried to avoid rhetorical pronument. It is a in islake, therefore, to suppose that when his poetry appears trile or commonplace, he did not know how plain a garb he dressed his thoughts in. Wordsworth: mioril, fibre was strong, He peaver sacrificed truth to beauty. His moral purpose is well expressed in his own words, when speaking of his poehs, he said: "They will co-operate with the benigh tendencies in human nature and society, and will, in their degree, he offacious in making men wiser, better and happier." Other selections from Wordsworth, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch have already been printed in this series.

RT thou a statesman, in the van Of public business trained and bred? First learn to love one living man; Then mayst thou think upon the dead.

> A lawyer art thou?-draw not nigh; Go, carry to some fitter place The keenness of that practised eye, The hardness of that sallow face.

> > Art thou a man of purple cheer? A rosy man, right plump to see? Approach; yet, doctor, not too near; This grave no cushion is for thee.

Or art thou one of gallant pride, A soldier, and no man of chaff? Welcome!-but lay thy sword aside, And lean upon a peasant's staff.

Physician art thou? One, all eyes, Philosopher! a fingering slave, One that would peep and botanize Upon his mother's grave?

> Wrapt closely in thy sensual fleece, O turn aside,-and take, I pray, (That he below may rest in peace) That abject thing, thy soul, away!

> > A moralist perchance appears: Led. Heaven knows how! to this poor sod; And he has neither eyes nor ears; Himself his world, and his own God;

One to whose smooth-rubbed soul can cling, Nor form, nor feeling, great nor small; A reasoning, self-sufficient thing. An intellectual all in all!

Shut close the door, press down the latch; Sleep in thy intellectual crust: Nor lose ten tickings of thy watch Near this unprofitable dust.

> But who is he with modest looks And clad in homely russet brown? He murmurs near the running brooks A music sweeter than their own.

> > Or fountain in a noon-day grove And you must love him, ere to you He will seem worthy of your love.

The outward shows of sky and earth. Of hill and valley, he has viewed; And impulses of deeper birth Have come to him in solitude.

In common things that round us lie Some random truths he can impart, The harvest of a quiet eve That broods and sleeps on his own heart.

> But he is weak, both man and boy, Hath been an idler in the land; Contented if he might enjoy The things which others understand.

> > Come hither in thy hour of strength: Come, weak as is a breaking wave! Here stretch thy body at full length, Or build thy house upon this grave.

Wonderful Work. ots Like It Being Done Right Here In Richmond.

Richmond people are surprised at the ork being done by "The Little Connerer." Public expression on the subset brings the matter frequently before he people. At first there were many pubters; and why not? So many claims I a similar nature have been made with tile or no backing, excepting the word I some stranger residing in a far-away ace; this evidence was accepted for ek of better. Not necessary to accept any longer. All sufferers from any days ill can find plenty of local enpresement for a remedy that will cure hom. Surely the Wonderful work of oan's Kidney Pills right here at home proof sufficient to satisfy any skeptic, ead the expression of one citizen on the abject:

abject:
Mrs. M. A. King, of $15 West Clay treet, says: "I suffered night and day ith a pain across the small of my back, ometimes it was almost unbearable and place of getting better it continued by grow worse and worse, I found no ellef until I procured a box of Doan's idney Pills at Owens and Minor Drug o. I took them as directed and in a hort time I was both gratified at the saults obtained. The backache which ung to me so persistently was entirely emoved, and I feel like a new woman, consider Doan's Kidney Pills a wonderal renedy."
